8—Isaac Thomson, born 1751, in Pennsylvania; died in the summer of 1823 at Middlefield, Ohio, aged 72 years. Pension records show that he enlisted in the Revolutionary War first as a private at Carlisle, Pa., county seat of Cumberland which then included what is now Juniata and adjacent counties. He re-enlisted as a lieutenant in 1777. It is a tradition in the family that he was accustomed to ride to Harrisburg to collect the money due from the United States Government which the state had assumed to pay. When informed that payment would not be made in full, he told the committee that they were a lot of thieves and refused to accept anything. Robert Thompson, probably his brother—7—afterwards collected in part, sending the money to Isaac Thomson who had then left Pennsylvania. Isaac Thomson owned the farm at the east of the homestead of Pioneer John Thomson in Juniata County, Pa., which he sold to his brother William—3—on Apr. 27, 1779, the year and probably the month of his father's death. In 1781-3 he was taxed on a saw-mill and in 1782-3 on a grist-mill in Fermanagh Township, Juniata County, Pa. It was probably in 1783 that he began his wanderings which took him first to the western part of Pennsylvania, then to New York State and finally to Geauga County, Ohio. He was referred to by other members as "Old Uncle Isaac" and by some as "Lost Uncle Isaac" for reasons that will be apparent from the following excerpts from the "Pioneer History of Geauga, Ohio." "The first permanent settlement in Middlefield was made in March, 1799, by Isaac Thomson and his wife Jane, and three sons, James, William and John—the last a child two months old; also a daughter, Eliza, aged 3 years. The family was originally from Washington County, Pa., leaving that place about 1795. Their first settlement was on the Genessee River, in the state of New York, where they resided one year. From there they started for the unbroken wilds of the west. Their route was down the river, to Lake Ontario by boat; up the lake and Niagara River to the falls. Hauling their boat around Niagara, with a team, they re-embarked, ascending the river to lake Erie, coasting on the lake as far as Erie harbor, where they were overtaken by a storm, and lost everything except the clothes upon their persons. From Erie they hauled their boat across country to a stream called French Creek, coasted down the creek to the Ohio River, and down the river to a little village called Charlestown, on the Virginia side. At Allegheny they left Sarah Wells, a daughter of Mrs. Thompson by her first husband. The family resided in Charlestown about two years; became disgusted with the society; packed up their goods and started up the river, leaving their daughter Polly, aged 13, with an acquaintance on the Ohio side of the river. Arriving at the mouth of Beaver River, they found an empty cabin, in which they stored a part of their goods, packing the remainder on an old horse they brought with them from Charlestown, and mounting the wife and child also on the horse, the husband on foot, they started for the lake, with no road but an Indian trail. The son James, had gone to Mentor the spring before. In the January following this date their son John Thompson was born. They remained in Mentor until the middle of March, and started for the Ohio River. They stopped for the night at a place later known as Johnson's corners, in a cabin occupied by two men, Hill and Lemoin. They selected a site on the blazed road running from Fairport Harbor, Lake Erie, to the Mahoning River at Warren, Ohio, and near the center of the township. Hill and Lemoin helped them build a cabin and soon after left for parts unknown, leaving them the first permanent settlers in the township. "The first white person born in the limits of the township, was a daughter of Isaac Thompson (88—Lydda), on the 6th of Apr., 1801." About two weeks after the birth of Thompson's daughter, in 1801, he and his son James, located a lot of land in Richmond, near the mouth of Grand River. While (away), working on this land, two Indians came to their house in Middlefield, acting in a cowardly, sneaking manner; peering through the cracks of the house, talking low, and conducting themselves badly. After more ill behavior they left. The family was thoroughly frightened, and the more so for knowing the Indians to be bad characters. One was part French and could speak English well. Mother Thompson was not well, and besides herself and babe, she had only her son William, a lad of 12 years, and a hired girl. They expected the Indians back the coming night. The boy and hired girl barricaded every entrance to the house, and by night, had a pretty strong fortress. As soon as it was dark, they put out the light and fire, and huddled in one corner and listened, in terrible suspense, for the cat-like tread of the Indians. Soon a step was heard. Some one approached the door and knocked. No sound within. Then a louder rap. Then conversation in English. The inmates began to take courage, and enquired: "Who is there, and what is wanted?" The answer came: "We are travelers, and want supper and lodging; we are friends." Being satisfied they were friendly, they quickly unbarred the door, and were overjoyed to see two stalwart white men walk in. They were soon furnished with supper, the best the house afforded. When Mother Thompson told the men of the visits of the Indians, they put their rifles in order, and laid themselves down before the fire. About midnight, one of the Indians came and opened the door, looking in very cautiously. He saw the two men, and hurriedly withdrew and disappeared in the darkness, and was never seen afterwards. In the summer of 1823, Isaac Thompson sickened and died, after a residence of a little over 24 years in a new country, and most of the time in an unbroken wilderness. Enduring hardships and privations almost unheard of in any country, he quietly fell asleep in death, honored and respected by all who knew him. At the time he settled in the Genessee country, it was very new, as also was his sojourn on the Ohio River; at Charlestown, Va., in an almost unbroken wilderness. The same is true of his stay in Mentor, and of his final settlement in Middlefield, when all things were in a primeval state. Mr. Thompson was a lieutenant in the Revolutionary War, and connected with the body guard of General Washington. He drew a pension from the government, and to obtain his money he was obliged to travel all the way to Pittsburg (this should be Harrisburg) for each installment. At the time of his death he was 72 years old. His widow survived him about 19 years. We consider grandmother Thompson, one of the most useful women who ever lived in the township. By the sickness in her own family and amongst neighbors, she acquired considerable knowledge of the medicinal properties of roots and herbs and barks, which grew in the woods. She was useful as a nurse and also as a physician. In those early times, there were but few doctors, and those not the best; grandmother having many calls, both in town and out of town; for her fame as a nurse had extended far and near. Perhaps no woman that ever lived in our town, or ever will live here, so much endeared herself to all the people of the town as this good old lady. She died in 1842, without an enemy in the world, aged seventy-eight. Isaac Thompson was twice married. His first wife, whom he married at about the end of the Revolutionary War, was Martha Larimore of Philadelphia. Issue (1) James, (2) John, (3) Polly, (4) William. He married secondly Mrs. Martha Jane (Evans) Wells (born 1764; died 1842, aged 78 years) widow of Benjamin Wells, of Fermanagh Township in what is now Juniata County, Pa. Issue (5) Robert, (6) Eliza, (7) John, (8) Lydda, (9) Robert E.

He accompanied "Old Uncle Isaac Thompson" on his wanderings through western Pennsylvania and New York into Ohio, and having become tired of the nomadic life, compelled the family to halt in Geauga County, Ohio. He became a man of influence in that community, and organized a company in the War of 1812. He was twice married: first to Sarah Wells, daughter of his step-mother Martha Jane (Evans) and Benjamin Wells. Issue (1) Isaac Newton, (2) Harriet, (3) Martha, (4) James Madison, (5) Edward, (6) Edmond. He married secondly at Mesopotamia, Ohio, Mercy Tracy, daughter of Gilbert and Deborah (Woodworth) Tracy and granddaughter of Ezra and Jemima (Kimball) Tracy and of Jonathan and Mercy (Parker) Woodworth. Gilbert Tracy (born 1761 at Preston, Conn.; died 1841 at Scipio, N. Y.) was in the army during the entire period of the Revolution; he served in the brigade commanded by Lafayette. He was a descendant of Thomas Tracy, who came to Salem, Mass., in 1636, and in 1659 was one of the four men granted the town of Norwich, Conn., by Uncas, Sachem Mohegans, in gratitude for services rendered when besieged by Sachem Narragansetts. He sat in the Colonial Assembly for twenty sessions, and was lieutenant in the Indian wars. Thompson never held any public office, and was never affiliated with any fraternal order, being much opposed to secret societies. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In August, 1832, at Burton, Ohio, he married Jedidah Anne Foot, a descendant of Nathaniel Foot who located at Wethersfield, Conn., in 1632. She was a daughter of Aaron and Jedidah (Sherman) Foot and a granddaughter of Aaron and Mary (Bronson) Foot and of Elihu Sherman of Williamstown, Mass. All of her ancestral lines are of New England stock, and date back to 1630-5. A full account of the Foot line is given in "The History of the Foots in America." He married twice: first in Jan., 1863, at Ashland, Ohio, Eliza Jane Poe (born —————; died Dec. 25, 1887), daughter of Daniel and Jane West (Ingram) Poe. She was descended from the Maryland Poes. George Jacob Poe was a soldier of fortune, born in the Palatinate, on the upper Rhine. He served under the English Queen Anne, came with his family of several children to Antietam Creek, Md., in 1745. Among the children was Adam (the ancestor), born at sea. Adam married Elizabeth Cochran from the west coast of Ireland. He held a captain's commission in the Revolution, was detailed to border warfare, became an Indian fighter, and was in many battles that are recorded in the histories dealing with that period. The fight of which most has been written was that known as the fight with Big Foot on the banks of the Yellow Creek. In this battle the Wyandotte nation was practically exterminated. In 1910, the citizens of Stark County, Ohio, erected a monument in commemoration of his services. Among his children was Andrew (the ancestor), who married Nancy Hoy, daughter of Charles Hoy, of York County, Pa., and there was born to them 12 children. Daniel (the ancestor) became a Methodist circuit rider and while on an errand for the church found Jane West Ingram, a girl of 21, teaching among the Indians on the Green Bay, Mich., 200 miles from civilization. They were married and were sent by the church to the then republic of Texas, where in the midst of their activities they were stricken with fever and died within a half hour of each other. They were buried in one grave under the pulpit of the Methodist Church of San Augustine. Jane West Ingram was of Puritan ancestry, each branch of which came to America in 1630.
